Families are made of different people; photographs

Anapaula shares, “These three pieces were made at the Holiday Continental (2013?). We loved to go every year (we still do!), especially because we didn't have family close by and we missed celebrating the holidays with family. (Back then we couldn't afford to go every year to Mexico.) Anapaula's grandmother passed away the same year we made the art pieces, and since then, going to the JMKAC became a reflection of ‘visiting Grandma.’ She was a Mexican painter, and what better way to honor her memory than passing the love of art to the next generation, while feeling at home.”
